Darke County Oldest Woman Celebrates 104th Birthday

GREENVILLE—How does it feel to be Darke county's —and possibly the Miami Valley's—oldest citizen?

Well, according to Alice Anne Clawson, 104 years young. there's lot of nice things to be happy over.

For instance there's all the publicity, the many birthday cards, the relatives and friends that always drop by the little country home where she lives quietly with her daughter. Mrs. Fred Lephart, eight miles north of Greenville.

And then, there is that most delectable of all dishes for great-great-grandma — Clawson — a fat, streaming gooseberry pie fresh out of the oven.

Yes, it's a gooseberry pie for Grandma this time instead of the usual birthday cake with candles.

"I like my gooseberry pie all right—don't care too much for cakes," smacked Grandma Clawson as her nostrils picked up some of the heavenly gooseberry aroma waiting from her daughter's kitchen.

"And especially do they taste good when they come right off the bushes back here on the farm."

Any candles on her birthday cake—er pardon us, birthday gooseberry pie?

"Land O' sakes no," muses Grandma—"If they'd try to put candles on my pie there'd be so many I'd be eating candles 'stead of pie—'n beside candle's won't stand up in pies anyway."

Living well over the century mark does fetch its memories of the passing eras that have made our nation great.

"I remember when I was only six, my mother and some neighbor ladies went to Greenville together to watch Lincoln's funeral train go through town." recollects Grandma Clawson, rolling back the century to Civil War days.

"The train stopped for a few minutes at the depot. Some people carried homemade flares—there were no lights except those at the depot and what the engine headlights made."

A TRIBUTE TO GLENN HARTER

Many of Mr. Harter's achievements have been outlined in recent newspaper articles. In the field of athletics, his record as a coach, and especially in basketball, was outstanding. This, however, was just one of many fields in which he excelled.

Every successful teacher must develop, in addition to his college training, a sound philosophy of life and education. His teaching then becomes permeated with high ideals. Through careful planning and hard work, spiced with a necessary ingredient known as enthusiasm, rewards begin to appear. These and many other traits, plus complete dedication to the teaching profession, brought about a highly successful career for Mr. Harter.

The students understood that his insistence on high achievement in whatever he directed was always accompanied by strong emphasis on high moral values. This was in important part of his teaching and helped many young people find solutions to their problems in a world of constant change and confusion. He was a stablilizing influence on students, teachers and all those with whom he came in contact.

During the time he served the Arcanum High School as teacher, coach and Administrator, he was constantly striving to improve all phases of the school program. He had a keen interest in scholarship tests and many of his students made high scores in the subjects he taught He was instrumental in starting the Honor Society which has become an important part of the Arcanum High School.

His dedication to the teaching profession did not keep him from participating in many other worthwhile activities. He was active in church work and found time to speak on many occasions at churches, athletic events an so on. Through his participation in many things, he lived a well rounded life.

His death has been a tremendous loss to his family, friends and, of course, the community. The students have suffered the loss of an excellent teacher. I am sure that the students, the faculty, the board of education, the parents and all who are connected with the school and community will strive in every way to carry on with the things he believed in, worked so hard to accomplish, and dedicated his life to. He improved the teaching profession and left the world a better place in which to live. His life was a shining example of the life good to live.
